

Accenture North American CEO Jimmy Etheredge Joins TechBridge National Board

[ATLANTA]— [February 09, 2022] —TechBridge announced today that Jimmy Etheredge, Accenture’s CEO of North America, has joined the TechBridge National Board. Etheredge brings decades of experience in technology and a long track record of leadership on diversity and inclusion.

As CEO of Accenture in North America, Etheredge drives the business’ bottom line while taking intentional steps to improve the quality – and equality – of people’s lives in underserved communities. He encourages businesses to improve business value while using their influence to create opportunity for all.

“Technology has the power to unite or divide, and we believe that one solution to breaking down the digital divide is to give more people access to the jobs of the future — digital jobs — and the training they need to be successful,” said Jimmy Etheredge, Accenture’s CEO of North America. “I am proud to join the TechBridge Board to work together to help more people in our communities across the country access pathways to more sustainable careers and break the cycle of generational poverty.”

Etheredge’s appointment bridges Accenture’s long-standing history as a champion and supporter of TechBridge since the nonprofit’s founding in 2000. Teaming with the Mayor of Atlanta, Andre Dickens, Accenture was instrumental in creating TechBridge’s Technology Career Program, which has connected countless individuals to sustainable careers and good jobs in technology with a living wage. Accenture has been and continues to be a key employer of TechBridge graduates.

TechBridge announced the establishment of a National Board of Directors to meet the increasing demands for their pioneering technology products, consulting and direct services across the United States.

On this newest appointment, TechBridge’s CEO Nicole Armstrong said, “TechBridge’s mission is to alleviate generational poverty through the innovative use of technology. Jimmy’s commitment to helping those in need is a testament to the kind of leader he is. He will bring this profound value to the TechBridge Board.”
